

Click, Clack, Vote!

The barnyard animals are tired of the chores Farmer Brown wants them to do. They want to put someone new in charge! Hold an election in your bookstore to help the animals figure out who should run the farm.

Before your storytime event, make copies of and cut out the ballot below. To kick off your election, ask young readers why they think each animal on the ballot below would make a good president (or not). Then, pass out ballots and ask readers to check off who should take charge of the farm. After everyone has voted, tally the votes and announce the winner!
